Mark L. Simpson Change Management Officer

Mark L. Simpson is the change management officer for the Defense Commissary Agency, headquartered at Fort Gregg-Adams, Va. He serves as the principal advisor to the DeCA director/CEO on all matters involving the implementation of change throughout the agency to include the following: corporate culture, mission and functions, organizational design, operations, procedures, commissary management practices, initiatives, programs and policy requirements. He is responsible for developing and establishing policies and guidelines to strengthen business processes and construct business strategies for an agency that employs more than 13,000 people and includes a headquarters, five areas and 235 commissaries located in 13 countries around the world, and with annual sales exceeding $4 billion. He was selected to this position effective Aug. 11, 2013.

Prior to this assignment, Mr. Simpson was chief of DeCA's shopper insights division from October 2012 to August 2013, which is responsible for exploring various methods to connect with and serve commissary customers using Internet and mobile technologies. This involved use of data-gathering techniques, state-of-the art technologies and engagement with patrons online through various social media strategies.

He served as a supervisory planning specialist with the then Corporate Planning Directorate from 2009 to 2012. His association with DeCA goes back to its formation in October 1991, when Mr. Simpson served as a cost/price analyst with the Contracting Business Unit until 2004. From 2004 to September 2009, he was a planning specialist and Lean Six Sigma program manager with Corporate Planning.

Mr. Simpson began his government career in 1984 as a contract specialist with the U.S. Army's Troop Support Command in St. Louis. From 1986 to 1991, he was assigned to the U.S. Army Laboratory Command, Adelphi, Md., first as a contract specialist and later as a cost/price analyst.
